WHEN DOES THE RECRUITING PROCESS START?

RECRUITING FACTS

Due to the rise in athletic scholarship need and the increase of available information for college coaches, the recruiting process is starting earlier than ever before. According to the NCAA, college coaches are starting to identify 7th and 8th graders as recruits and even starting to offer scholarships to prospects before their freshman year.

EXPERT ADVICE

Develop your game plan and winning strategy for taking control of your recruitment.

02.

HOW DO I GET DISCOVERED?

RECRUITING FACTS

With the volume of prospects today, and recruiting regulations that limit the amount of time coaches can be on the road evaluating, college coaches rely heavily on third-party resources to build their list of student-athletes to actively recruit. Every sport has major third-party sources that collect prospect data, verify the information, and make it available for college coaches. Coaches then use this information to perform their initial search to identify student-athletes that fit the academic and athletic guidelines of their program. This is the first step college programs take to decide if they will continue to actively recruit a prospect.

EXPERT ADVICE

Post your academic and athletic recruiting resume online in a verified recruiting network.
