

Finding them is hard.

Reminding and nice to you.

I don't think I could go without them.

Enchanting and cheering.

Never ending care and support.

Dramatic, but funny at times.

Supporting and there to carry you.

These are what friends are, and I am so grateful to have them.

Written by Sydney Boone

I wrote this because for me finding friends was hard, and it was harder being alone. Then I got through those hard times by going out of my comfort zone and making friends so now I had supporting friends. They help me get through those hard times because now I'm not alone. So that's why I wrote this poem, my friends are all these things and more.
